Dear Sir,

re Faye Johnson.

We act for your abovenamed sister.

Our client has consulted us consequent upon a series of emails which you addressed to her and which are dated respectively 11th, 12th and 16th August last.

The emails and, in particular, those of 11th and 16th make a series of a scurrilous and baseless allegations against our client with respect to her conduct towards her mother and other members of your family following the death of your father Henry Croll on 15th June 2003.

We are instructed by our client that all of the allegations made against her by you are untrue and each and every allegation raised by you is refuted by our client.

Based on our instructions of these allegations are, in our opinion, of a slanderous nature and as such actionable.

Our client also believes that these allegations are deliberately designed to drive a wedge into the relationship between our client and her mother. We understand that up until your involvement that relationship was of a warm and loving relationship between mother and daughter but consequent upon your actions (by way of the allegations and your conduct whilst you reside with your mother in your mother's home) are clearly put in place to alienate our client from her mother. Our client can only wonder the reasons for your conduct.

Our client instructs us that she has been in contact with her mother and will continue to do so as she wishes to see her mother and maintain a loving relationship with her. Mrs.Johnson seeks that you refrain from interfering in that relationship by either influencing Mrs.Croll against her, or alternatively, preventing Mrs.Croll from seeing our client.

In conclusion we are also instructed to advise you that all future correspondence (whether by post or in electronic form) that you may wish to address to our client should be forwarded to our office.

Yours faithfully
